

Broadbean Resume Search

Browse all of your external databases from one simple interface

Take extra steps out of your sourcing process

Broadbean Resume Search is designed with the recruiter in mind. Between resume databases, social media sites and professional networks, recruiters are using many tools to source for candidates. Broadbean Resume Search takes all of your paid subscriptions and places them into one portal, so you can quickly and easily locate the job seekers you need, today.

Save recruiter time and streamline search practices

Forward-thinking talent acquisition teams are looking to fill positions faster. This often leads to purchasing subscriptions to more than one resume database. Not only does this add a hard cost to your recruitment budget, but it also takes additional effort to manage activity across multiple tools.

By combining your external sourcing tools into a single platform, your team only needs to remember one password—run one search—to find every relevant candidate. Once a candidate who matches your criteria is found, you can complete any of the following from within Broadbean Resume Search: download a resume, forward to a colleague, and shortlist or email the candidate. Our tool will also identify candidate resumes that have already been downloaded by someone at your company, so you're not paying for the same profile twice.

With the addition of Talentstream MyCandidates, recruiters can search the existing pool of talent within your ATS or other recruitment software. Why spend money if you have sourced relevant candidates in the past?

Evaluate your resources and recruiter usage with detailed reporting.

With your organization already subscribing to more than one candidate database, how can you be sure that your investment is being utilized properly and returning positive results?

Identify the number of completed searches and downloaded resumes—filtered by the recruiter or resource—with usage reporting. This information allows you to understand tool adoption and evaluate the ROI of your vendors.
